- Once Mullah Nasruddin arrived in a small town. At the plaza, he stopped at a fruit stand and admired the wonderful fruits for sale.
- “These fruits look great and I must try them, so please give me a pound !” he said to the vendor.
- He wanted to taste the delicious - looking fruit. He wondered, should he go ahead or should he stop and have some? He didn’t want to get late, but he couldn’t stop thinking about the fruits. He looked around, there was no rest house nor was there any house.

Finally, he found a tree and sat under it as he could no longer wait to eat the fruits. He took one fruit, closed his eyes and put it into his mouth. He thought he would taste something delicious, but as soon as he took one bite, his mouth felt as if it was on fire! He turned beet red and tears rolled down his cheeks, but/still he kept eating.

A passer-by saw this strange sight and went up to him. 'Excuse me', he said, 'why are you eating red chillies like this?' 'Oh, are these red chillies? I thought they were some fruit so I wanted to eat them, and now I am eating them because I have paid for them!'

- EX E Fill in the blanks with appropriate correlative conjunctions.

- There was a deserted island in the sea. Neither were there any animals nor were there any human beings. Only an old man, whose name was Prospero, and his daughter Miranda, a very beautiful young lady, lived on this island.
- Miranda had been so young when she had come to this island that she had forgotten both where she was born, and that she was actually a princess. She had no memory of either her relatives or of her servants. In fact, she did not remember seeing any human face except her fathers'!
- However, both Prospero and Miranda lived quite happily on the island. This was because the island had some spirits whom Prospero had helped.

- So, either it was food they wanted or clothes, the spirits provided everything for them.
- One day, a ship got wrecked near the island, and many of the people on the ship swam to the island. Among them was a young prince, Ferdinand. Ferdinand was not only handsome but also brave. When Miranda saw him, she wondered either he was a spirit or a god, because she had never seen a man before. Ferdinand too, felt that not only was Miranda beautiful, but she was also very intelligent. Neither Ferdinand nor Miranda noticed Prospero watching them. Prospero knew that he should either allow them to fall in love with each other, or he should imprison the young man.

• What happened to the two young people? Did they fall in love? Did Prospero allow them to get married? Did they get off the island? If you want to know the whole story, read 'The Tempest' by William Shakespeare!
