This picture depicts the scene of a garden. One day, our school chalked out a plan to go on a school trip to a nature reserve. When we reached to the nature reserve, the guide of the nature reserve welcomed us with smile. We all were excited on that day. We were amazed to see the beauty of the nature reserve.

The guide showed us some unusual flora and fauna in the nature reserve. Tom was clicking the photographs of that place. Rocks were very slippery there. So, the guide advised us to walk carefully and be with the group. All of a sudden, the camera fell from Tom's hand. He tried to hold the camera but was unable to do it. Even, he slipped and fell. He started crying. The guide and our teacher rushed to him when they heard him shouting for help. All of a sudden, all excitement turned into worry. Fortunately Tom was not hurt but he was scared. The guide helped Tom and retrieved his camera. That day was the most memorable for all of us. Our teacher advised us not to walk away from the group and to ask for help if we had a problem.

Moral - We should be with our group in a crowded place or while going to a field trip.
